February 2011

2011 Rice Production Workshop

The 2011 Rice Production Workshop will be held on March 21st at the Refuge Restaurant in Yuba City. The Workshop, organized by University of California Cooperative Extension (UCCE), aims to present current and potential growers, pest control advisers, industry representatives, regulatory agencies and other interested parties with a broad view of the California rice production system and the most up to date research findings.

Information will be presented by UC Davis and UCCE scientists and extension personnel with many years experience working in California rice. Topics include land preparation, varieties, rice growth and development, water management, crop fertility, and pest management.

To participate in the 2011 Rice Production Workshop, complete the enclosed registration form and mail to the indicated address along with the required payment. For more information, contact Chris Greer (530-822-7515), Cass Mutters (530-538-7201), or Luis Espino (530-458-0578) Farm Advisors, UCCE. Remember that space is limited, so register early!
